Intervals of Jupiter | Weight of Things

Saturday, October 7th to Thursday, November 30th 2023

Carali McCall, Running Restraint, Gryder Gallery, 2023

Gryder Gallery presents Carali McCall's second solo exhibition in New Orleans, Intervals of Jupiter | Weight of Things on from 7th October to 30th November 2023. The exhibition brings together works on paper and a series of performances and sound works that focus on the act of drawing and artists' materials, such as graphite, paper, rock, pigment, and paint.

In the last exhibition, An Arms Reach: The Art of Endurance, McCall presented a series of 10 mid-sized circle and line drawings and performed one of her live artworks, Circle Drawing for 4hr 15 minutes. In this exhibition, Intervals of Jupiter | Weight of Things, a collection of 10 large-sized circle drawings are presented with sound (via vinyl record sound system) and a limited edition of 25 vinyl records; the exhibition celebrates the temporal, bodily and durational element of drawing and the shape and sound of a line.

Canadian-born and living in London UK, McCall has earned recognition for her academic and rigorous art practice that encompasses film/video, sculpture, photography, performance, drawing and writing. Her work reflects the process of making and the demanding role of the body. In past work artworks have been made by either carving through the landscape while running, drawing a continuous line with graphite for as long as possible, or holding a bit of the landscape (a rock) as an act of endurance.
